In Loving Memory of Margarita Hernandez Garcia

Margarita Hernandez Garcia, lovingly known as Magi or Mago, passed away on May 1, 2026, at the age of 57 after a courageous battle with cancer. She faced her illness with remarkable strength and grace, fighting until her final breath, surrounded by the love of her family in Houston, Texas—a place she made her home after moving from Mexico decades ago in search of a better life.

The youngest of seven siblings, Margarita carried a quiet resilience from an early age. She worked tirelessly after arriving in the United States, not only to build a life for herself, but to support her mother and loved ones back home. Her journey was one of sacrifice, determination, and deep devotion to family.

In Houston, she found the love of her life—her husband, Raymond, with whom she built a beautiful family and whom she now reunites with in eternal rest. Together, they raised their children,

Raymond Alonso and Evelina, who were the center of her world. Margarita was more than a mother—she was a teacher, a guide, and a source of unconditional love. She made their childhood magical, filling it with warmth, intention, and unforgettable memories.

Her love extended far beyond her own children. Margarita was a nurturing presence to many—serving as a caregiver, mentor, and second mother to those around her. She cared deeply for her niece and nephew, Kaylie and Robert, and held a special maternal bond with Alondra. To so many, she was not just family by blood, but family by heart.

Margarita had a spirit that was both gentle and vibrant. She was an incredible cook who brought people together through her meals. She found joy in the simple things and had a gift for turning ordinary moments into something truly special. Her infectious smile, playful humor, and creative soul left a lasting impression on everyone she met.

She was kind, compassionate, and endlessly giving—always putting others before herself and offering comfort, care, and love without hesitation. Margarita had a rare magic about her: the ability to make people feel seen, valued, and deeply loved.

She is survived by her beloved children, Raymond Alonso and Evelina, along with brothers, sisters, her nieces, nephews, extended family, and countless others whose lives she touched.

Margarita leaves behind an abundance of broken hearts, but also a lifetime of cherished memories.

Her love, strength, and spirit will live on in all who knew her.

She will be deeply missed and forever remembered.
