“ To share just only one memory we shared together, would honestly be doing you injustice. I could talk about the time you saved my from those stairs in the middle of the night or the many many times you wiuld take me out to go look for mom, or even the times we shared at the blue house, but the best memories i share with you are the ones that happend when everyone was sound asleep, they kept me going and taught me so much. Ive always had trouble sleeping even as a child and i would get up and wander around the house. you'd get up with meand wed snack in the middle of the night and youd sing to me and wven the nights where i was missing someone so much and crying out for them, you always knew what to say to get me to sleep. And even if that didnt work wed listen to your West of the Rockys station and hear about all the weird things in this world. You made the lonely nights bearable and the harder nights livable.

“ Grandma there are so many great memories you gave me and our family. I will treasure them all forever. You always knew how to make every little moment special. Especially the holidays! From the food to the fun. I will miss the holidays with you the most. However, the core memory we share is when I was a very sick little girl in the hospital and they were ready to throw in the towel, but you never gave up! You said they were wrong and God had the final say. You never left my bedside except to work and even then you visited me every day and held my hand. I am forever grateful for my strong, praying Grandma that saved me and raised me as her own. I love you forever and after and will miss you immensely. Rest in your well deserved peace Grandmother.

*Love Your Proud Granddaughter,
Roxanne Mary Lou Alvarez-Roberts*
